

STUDENT LOAN DISCHARGE

It is interesting to observe that here is a confirmation in writing of the U.S. Department of Education ceasing to collect on a student loan. Usually student loans are hard to cancel, because of hardball government enforcement of their crime syndicate tactics, and less consumer protection laws. But here it is . . .

Please read the enclosed Notice of Proposed Treasury Offset for an explanation of your rights and the manner in which you must exercise them to avoid offset. The Department may have already referred for offset some of the debts listed on this statement, as explained in prior notices. Any in-person hearing will be held in Atlanta, Chicago, or San Francisco. (See enclosed notice.)

The Department's records show the following information on these debts. Individual debt information is listed below and/or on the following page.

Note that they have insulted the customer by saying he "defaulted" on the loan, and implying that offset is somehow disadvantageous to him by saying "you can avoid offset". Ladies and gentlemen, apparently this is the best we can expect from a corrupt system. The proven fact is, as you know, THERE WAS NO "LOAN" AND MONEY NEVER CAME OUT OF THEIR ACCOUNTS.

Hopefully you have observed here that they are ceasing their efforts to collect. They are referring it instead to the Treasury, which works with the Fed to create money out of thin air, using the Mandrake Mechanism. So IT IS NOT COMING FROM OTHER TAXPAYERS!!!

That is why we call this a "victory statement". It is a WIN for the student and for society. He borrowed NOTHING. Instead, he merely exercised his natural right to create life-supporting benefits by applying for the student funding and receiving it. Instead of that $46,134 being added to the trillions spent on underground cities, chemtrails, black ops, secret space projects, mind control, and other population-damaging campaigns, it went to someone's harmless, helpful, constructive, and life-supporting education.

He had no obligation to "repay" it because they lied when they called it a "loan" in the first place. Nothing came out of their accounts. And they have lied again on this statement when they said he "defaulted". How can you "default" on a loan that never existed?

They have done the right thing by setting it off to the Treasury. Now maybe in the future, they will even begin to get more honest about the nonexistence of the debt in the first place. And last but not least, here are some salient comments on this statement from the customer himself. Keep in mind that he had to keep sending the Liberty documents from June 2014 to August 2015 -- fourteen months:

I do give my permission for the "sanitized" version of the EDD letter. Please, anything I can do for others. This has been quite a ride. The EDD ran me through many different entities and I stuck it out and kept lettering them all. I never gave in. I stuck to my resolve. That's the secret as far as I'm concerned. No matter what they throw at you. Never give up. Thank you. Life is good.
